God's Image, Our Mission
Twenty-ninth Sunday in Ordinary Time
World Mission Sunday

The coin in today's Gospel carries Caesar's image. But whose image do we carry? We carry the image of God. When Jesus tells us to give God what belongs to God, he asks for something deeper than a contribution: he asks for a place at the center of our lives. As a missionary priest, I left my homeland to serve here among you. Along the way, I have discovered that mission is an exchange of faith: I share Christ with you, and through your faith, I encounter him anew. Each of us can say, "I am a missionary." Our baptism gives us this calling. Faith is a gift entrusted to us to share, so that others may discover the hope and belonging we have found in Christ. On this World Mission Sunday, we are "One in Christ, United in Mission." Caesar's coin can pass from hand to hand, but God's image lives within us. May the way we live help the world recognize the One to whom we belong.
